Valet Tray

This high quality product of cabinet making was produced from "Progetti" of Carate Brianza (near Milan) following my design in 1992 and had stayed on the market for a few years. I was asked at that time to give it a name and, since it was meant to empty one's pockets, I named it "brigante" ("scoundrel") considering that during the night it takes all the personal belongings from our pockets: mobile phone, wallet, purse, keys, cards, money ... Now, after a few years, here I present it again in precious woods (padouk, ebony, rosewood, teak, thuja root, amaranth) and distinguished leathers.

Wood of different scents is lathed, chiselled and bound together with glue and pins to form the frame. The wood finish is of natural oil. All of it is coated in leather of various colours and sewn, taking care to leave the four corners of precious wood bare.
